Announcing the 2019 West Michigan Homeschool Theatre Production!

West Michigan Homeschool Theatre, a cooperation of 12-18 year old homeschooled students, is again working on a production that is sure to entertain. Like all the other years, the production will take place in the Beardsley Theater in the Frauenthal. Mark your calendars now for the March 28-30th show called That 70's Mystery. Embrace the 70's culture with this crazy mystery loosely based on the unlikely combination of William Shakespeare's Julius Caesar and The Watergate Scandal! Envision a scheming actor, a bumbling detective, and a cool Private Investigator! You will be able to meet the thief who stole Mr. George Lucky's famous Space Script! New this year will be audience participation! The audience will have the opportunity to come up on stage to inspect the crime scene, submit their guesses, and take part in the investigative process! This show is definitely for those interested in infectious humor and side-splitting jocularity! Ticket purchases will be available at www.frauenthal.org by February 2019.

Past productions over the last couple years have been Who in the Dickens is Martin Chuzzlewit? and The Secret Garden Unlocked. Each of these highly entertaining shows have proved to be great clean fun for the whole family. These diligent students put forth great dedication to make each of these shows high quality, fully entertaining, and full of life lessons to walk away with. You will not be disappointed!

organization that is close to Link's heart.

"I chose Lakeshore Human Trafficking Task Force because it is an organization that can do a lot of good and this community needs it," says Link. "Most people think human trafficking refers to just sex trafficking but there are many other forms like labor trafficking for example. My goal is to create more awareness in the community."

Link, who is a graphic designer and owner of Max Graphics, worked on her kayak sculpture for well over 80 hours.

Hemisphere Design Works, formerly known as KL Outdoor, made the project possible by providing the nine kayaks for "invited" Michigan artists to create kayak sculptures. They also purchased Link's kayak sculpture.

The organization knew they wanted to purchase one of the kayak sculptures going into the project. After an office poll, they chose Link's kayak to purchase which is now displayed in their office on Terrace Point in Downtown Muskegon. The kayak sculpture project was one way the community is celebrating Hemisphere Design Works decision to locate their corporate headquarters in Muskegon.

The nine kayak sculptures were displayed at various locations along W. Western Avenue and Clay Street as part of Lakeshore Art Festival. Link's kayak sculpture was located at 1st and Western by the Western Market Chalets.

"We are thankful that this kayak sculpture project brought art to our downtown as well as provided a significant benefit to a local non-profit," says Carla Flanders, Executive Director of the Lakeshore Art Festival.

Organization

Muskegon, MI – Audrey Link, kayak sculpture artist of "Life on the Lakeshore", announced her decision to donate all of the proceeds received from her life size kayak sculpture to the Lakeshore Human Trafficking Task Force.

Link went into the kayak sculpture project, which launched this summer, knowing she wanted her art to benefit a local non-profit. For Link, that non-profit was Lakeshore Human Trafficking Task Force, a local organization working to support survivors of trafficking. This is an
